

Reporter on Israeli Raid of Egypt

TEL AVIV (AP) — "One of the first vehicles we encountered after our tank force left the beach was a truck loaded with cotton—a single shot turned it into a blazing pyre," wrote the only newsmen taken along on Israel's strike into Egypt Tuesday.

"All hell broke loose," Eli Landau of the newspaper Maariv continued. "The tanks were firing away at all targets and the road we were following was lined on both sides with burning vehicles of all descriptions, destroyed buildings and shot-up positions."

"By daylight we found ourselves traveling on a broad road under a cliff overhang rising 60 to 70 yards above us."

"That first stretch was a pretty tense time for us. We never knew what we might meet beyond the next rise or twist in the road."

"But a good many vehicles that came our way must have mistaken us for somebody else. They even made way for us, edging over onto the road margins. They made rather good targets."

"The units forged ahead, blowing up segments of the road behind them."

"There was increasing opposition as the units approached their main target areas at Ras Abu Darg and Ras Za'Farana, in the southernmost part of the armored column's sweep."

"They demolished 12 guardhouses en route. Of these, eight were manned and put up opposition."

"At one stage, three Egyptian armored troop carriers confronted the fast-advancing column and put up a fight, but the men inside spilled out and fled as soon as the first Israeli shot came whistling over."

"Other Egyptians took refuge in the low hillocks overlooking the road and peppered the convoy."

"Grenades and satchels of explosives were tossed into Egyptian positions along the road as the column rolled forward."

"At Ras Abu Darg, the Egyptians had positioned an anti-tank gun atop a lighthouse."

"The most stupid positioning of an anti-tank gun that I ever saw," said the commander of our task force.

"The naval radar unit, the lighthouse, four concrete structures and 30 gun emplacements were all blown up here. At least 20 Egyptians were killed in the fighting at this place."

"But we didn't check the house and structures we shot at, and there must have been many more dead, task force com-

Debate Opens on Electoral College

By JOHN BECKLER

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House launches a historic debate today on proposals to change the 182-year-old constitutional provision for the election of presidents.

Several days of discussion and voting are in prospect and final action is not expected until next Wednesday.

Three alternative plans will be put before the House, but only one appears to have a chance of winning the two-thirds majority required for passage of a constitutional amendment.

It would eliminate the present electoral vote system and provide for direct popular election of the president. If no candidate got 40 per cent of the popular vote, a runoff election would be held between the top two contenders.

The proposal, which has the backing of House leaders of both parties, was given a big boost when the Republican Policy Committee strongly endorsed it Tuesday.

The major plans to be offered in addition to direct election are:

— The district plan, which allows one electoral vote to the candidate carrying a congressional district and two to the candidate carrying the state.

— The proportional plan, which divides a state's electoral votes among the candidates in the same proportion as their popular vote.

mander added.

"All the time the tanks kept shooting like mad. The Egyptians did not have time to deploy their heavy weapons and shot back mainly with machine guns and light automatic weapons."

"Meanwhile, the air force kept up close ground support, often strafing positions only a few hundred yards ahead of the advancing columns."

"At one point, the planes swooped down on a cluster of seven tanks, at least one of which was knocked out."

"The Israelis were on the alert for reinforcements, but the Egyptians never turned up."

"The operation ended as the ground force regrouped at the pre-assigned evacuation points and returned to the Israeli-held side of the Gulf of Suez with all its personnel and equipment intact."

partise of a skilled pilot can save a jet airliner from a near-miss. And the brush can leave even a veteran flier visibly shaken.

An American Airlines jet was climbing into a turn upon take-off from Chicago's busy O'Hare Airport this summer when it cut through a light curtain of clouds and found a stray private plane coming directly at it.

The veteran pilot slipped smoothly into a deep sideways dive to miss the twin-engine aircraft before the private pilot was even aware of how close he had come to triggering a tragedy.

But at the end of the flight in Washington, the airline pilot sighed and said, "Oh, boy!"

After the first crash near Dayton, a TWA pilot urged a federal safety hearing to require that all small planes radio their positions to control towers when near urban airports. For the busiest airport areas, the pilot said the planes should be required to have automatic signaling devices similar to those of jets to identify their locations.

Two years later the FAA has the proposal still under study.

Nuclear Carrier Debated

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's consumers will pay in excess of a billion dollars more each year in gas, electricity and telephone bills if state commissions approve all rate increases currently sought by private utilities.

This figure—based on a compilation by Senate researchers—represents a record volume of rate hike applications by privately owned utilities.

The Senate's Government Operations Committee said a total of $961,160,505 in gas, electric and telephone rate increases were pending before the 50 state utility regulating commissions as of June 1.

Not included in this total, it said, are a number of substantial rate increase applications, including one for a $117.5 million rate increase by Consolidated Edison of New York and a $45 million proposed boost by Commonwealth Edison of Chicago.

The rate application figures, Senate staffers pointed out, also do not include some $218 million in rate-increase requests now before the FCC and the Federal Power Commission.

The state figures—on a utility-by-utility basis—break down this way: Proposed electric rate increases, $317.4 million; gas, $175.7 million; telephone, $468 million.

The Senate committee has held 21 days of hearings this summer on a bill, sponsored principally by Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., to provide more public information on utility operations and to create a federally financed staff of experts to represent consumer interests in rate cases.

The committee said as of June 1, only eight states and Puerto Rico had no requests for utility rate increases.

These were some of the largest rate applications as of June 1: New York, $198.3 million; Michigan, $188 million; California, $155.7 million; and Missouri, $73.5 million.

Tuesday, in unprecedented action, the Federal Communications Commission took a step toward matching what the Metcalf bill would write into law.

It appointed a lawyer and an economist to watch out for consumer interests in rate negotiations with the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., which has been criticized for its closed-to-the-public format.

Dirksen to Be Buried in Home State

WASHINGTON (AP) — No band played for Everett McKinley Dirksen. There were no muffled drums, no 21-gun salute. Only quiet eloquence as his President and the Congress bade him goodbye.

"Our great men are the common property of the country," said President Nixon in his eulogy to the Senate Republican leader. "Everett Dirksen of Illinois was and is the common property of the 50 states."

In an honor conferred on only 20 men before him, Dirksen lay beneath a blanket of roses in the great rotunda of the Capitol where he spent nearly half his 73 years. Instead of a flag on the coffin, there was the seal of the Senate.

After being borne at noon today without procession to the National Presbyterian Church for funeral services, the coffin, accompanied by Mrs. Dirksen and the family, will go aboard the Presidential jet for the flight to Pekin, Ill., and burial Thursday.

The memorial service Tuesday lasted only 24 minutes before 900 people who included the Cabinet, senators past and present, most members of the House of Representatives and envoys of foreign governments.

His eulogy over, the President shook hands with Mrs. Dirksen and the Dirksens' daughter and her husband, Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn. Sen. Baker gave a brief response in which he called Dirksen a realist as well as an idealist.

Dirksen's heart failed Sunday, five days after he underwent surgery for lung cancer.

At one end of Dirksen's coffin was a wreath of red, white and blue flowers placed by the President. On the sides were huge wreaths from the House and Senate. An honor guard, representing all the military services, stood a 24-hour watch.

The Senate called a recess again for two hours today to form a guard of honor at the church.

Moon Rock Just Sat There 150 Million Years, Says Science

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — One of the rocks that Neil A. Armstrong picked up on the moon had been at Tranquility Base for a long time.

The rock had been "sitting on the surface, just sitting there, as a rock for 150 million years," says Dr. Robin Brett, a member of the scientific team that examined rocks returned on the Apollo 11 flight.

The rock hardened from a molten state about three billion years ago, he said, and probably was blasted from the moon's bedrock by the impact of a meteor miles away.

"When this rock first got on the moon's surface, dinosaurs roamed over North America," Brett said.

On the earth since, he said, "there have been mountain ranges formed and partly eroded away, the seas came in covering vast areas and then went out again. All through that time, this one little rock had just been sitting there with no action whatsoever."

billion years ago.

The moon heated up after its formation, as did the earth, and was a glob of molten rock. But while the earth continued to evolve and bring forth life, the moon—after 500 million years—in effect died.

The Apollo 11 mission failed to still the hot debate among scientists about the origin of the moon.

Before the flight there were three theories: the moon was thrown into orbit from the Pacific Ocean area of the earth; it is a sister planet formed at the same time and in the same manner as the earth; it was formed elsewhere in the solar system and became a captive of the earth's gravitational field.

Examination of the Apollo 11 samples failed to confirm or contradict any of the theories.

Studies of the rocks gave no promise of any immediate economic benefit for mankind, and no indication of life on the moon.

Organic matter, which can come from a life form, was measured at "from dead zero to one part per million" in the Apollo 11 samples, a scientist said. There is some question that even this minute amount may have come from the handling of the rocks and not from the moon.

No rainfall was reported in the state in the 24-hour period ended at 7:30 a.m. today.

W.R. and Solon Meet Head on

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — State Rep. N. B. "Nap" Murphy of Hamburg, in a face-to-face confrontation with Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller at a public meeting, asked the governor Tuesday night to tell the people the "truth."

With Rockefeller holding a microphone for Murphy, who was sitting in a front-row seat in an audience of almost 100, the representative asked:

"Governor, please tell these people the truth. You are purposely misrepresenting these people of the great state of Arkansas."

Murphy had asked Rockefeller to say how much more money his administration had to spend than the administration of any other governor.

"I cannot and you know it and if you deny it in front of these people tonight I will enjoy it," Rockefeller said. "I cannot spend one more nickel."

As Murphy continued to question the governor, there were sporadic shouts for him to sit down.

"I don't have to sit down," Murphy said. "If you are a bunch of Rockefelleres, I don't have to ask you for nothing."

"We will come to November and we'll find out if these people were being represented well," Rockefeller said.

He was asked by a newsman if that meant he would seek a third term in 1970.

"That's one of the silliest questions that you could ask a man who may run again," Rockefeller said.

At one point during the exchange between the governor and Murphy, Rockefeller jokingly told the representative: "Remember, Nap, I'm still bigger than you are."

The correct way to play a hand is not necessarily the way that will produce the most tricks. Experts frequently use safety plays to insure their contracts and pay the insurance premium with an overtrick.

South wins the heart lead with his ace and plays his king of spades. He does this to guard against the chance that West will hold all three missing trumps. Since he does not hold the 10 he cannot guard against three trumps in the East hand.

When both opponents follow South can play a second trump and go after diamonds. If he picks up the queen he will be able to discard his losing heart and make an overtrick. On the other hand if he goes wrong with that queen the opponents will also make a heart trick and he will be one down.

There is a much better play for the slam at his disposal. He must go through a process known as "stripping the hand".

He leads his jack of clubs to dummy's ace at trick three. Then he ruffs a club, plays a trump to dummy's ace, ruffs dummy's last club and leads his four of hearts. Either opponent can win this trick. A heart or club lead will allow South to ruff in dummy and discard a diamond from his hand. A diamond lead will automatically take care of the problem of locating the queen.

Of course, this safety play would fail if the second club were ruffed but playing against an 8-1 club break is a far better chance than trying to locate a missing queen.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

SOMEONE HAS TO BE THE BOSS

Dear Helen: This 50-50 business in marriage—it sounds great, but it just doesn't work. There has to be one that has the final say and this should be the husband and father. Man was created to rule and the need to rule is his strongest motive to marry. His home is his kingdom, and when his family accepts this, he rules with love (usually).

Too often nowadays, the women has the upper hand in the home, and men are so frustrated from this situation that they seek fulfillment elsewhere, or else they lash out to get even. Women complain that men won't accept responsibility so they MUST take over, but there is a reason. As my husband said in the first year of our marriage, "Yes, you want me to be the boss, but you want me to do it YOUR way. If I don't, I can't live with you."

I learned after a couple of hard years that this was true, and I now let him rule. I help only by giving him information he may need to make decisions. We abide by them and find that he is right, even when we think he is wrong—RULED AND HAPPY.

Dear R and H: One woman's king is another woman's dictator. Your system works for YOU—so fine, it might not, however, if you had a less benevolent husband.—H.

Dear Helen: I've often wondered: Does the way a letter is written (kind of stationery, typed or not, your name spelled or wrong, spelling, etc.) influence your choice for your column? I know you get hundreds more letters each day than you can use. On what do you base your selections? And do you read every letter personally?—CURIOUS

Dear Curious: A high I.Q. (Interest Quotient) hits the "Go" button with me, no matter how or on what the letter is written. Some of my best and most touching notes show up on torn scraps of paper, in fractured English. But fine comments also appear on expensive bond, under engraved letterheads.

Selections for the column are influenced by those "timelies" that jump right off the pages and grab me: The wide appeal or unusualness of the problem (will readers relate, berate, or assimilate?), deep human interest, pathos, humor, insight, new ideas and, of course, the good ol' battle of the sexes. My only regret is that so many excellent contributions don't make print, for lack of space.

While I appreciate type written mail, hand-written get equal time, and often more—they're harder to read! Only once did choice of stationery bother me. A woman wrote, "Please excuse this terrible, garish note paper, I got it from my daughter who has awful taste!" It just so happened that OUR daughter had given me an identical box for Mother's Day, and I loved those bright-flowered borders. The gal's question, described self-pityingly over four sheets of her daughter's stationery: "Why can I get close to my children?" I told her, in spades!

Do I read every letter? Yes! Each problem or comment which comes to HELEN HELP US! gets personal attention. I also answer very personally and at considerable length, all correspondents sent, county-wide jurisdiction. Lowest court level would be the Magistrate's Court, a concession to the Justice of the Peace system. Magistrates would serve in communities as needed, would be appointed by the judge of the District Court, and their authority would be confined to preliminary process and proceedings, with no trial authority.

COUNTY GOVERNMENT

Mr. Etter explained that under the proposed new document, county government structure would be vested in a governing body known as the County Council, consisting of five, seven, or nine members, depending upon the size of the county; elected non-partisan from single-member districts; and that these, together with an official known as the County Administrator, having approximately the same duties and powers as the present county judge, less his judicial duties; would be the legislative body of the county.

Taxes other than the present five mill county and city general tax, would not be levied in the proposed Constitution, but the County Council would be empowered to propose up to a maximum of 22 mills for all purposes, effective only upon a majority vote of qualified voters voting on the question. Cities would have the same authority, except that there are no limits specified as to cities. The millage they may levy is unlimited, subject also to a majority vote of those voting on the question at any general election.

Bond issues may be proposed, the delegate said, by the governing body of the county or a city to a maximum of: For the county, 10 percent of the assessed valuation thereof, to be outstanding at any one time and, for the cities 20 percent of the assessed valuation of a municipality. These are maximums, and are not levied in the constitution, but may become effective only if a majority voting on the matter, approve.

NEARING END

The county's delegate explained that the status of the Convention presently is that it is between second and third reading of each proposal; and that as soon as what has been proposed is put into its proper constitution, the document will be published over Arkansas, and the people of the state will have the remainder of 1969 in which to study the proposed new Constitution and to advise their delegates of what revisions they would want from the document which the convention must be presenting.

In other words, he said, nothing is at present necessary in its final form. "The Convention wants to comply with the wishes of a majority of the people of Arkansas in this matter, and to that end is presenting this tentative proposal with the hope that if this is not what Arkansas wants, that it's voice will be heard before the Convention reconvenes," Mr. Etter said.

The delegate said that he is available to any groups wishing an explanation of the new proposed Constitution.

FIREMAN'S FUND PAYS FIRST HURRICANE CLAIMS

Biloxi-Gulfport — The first five Hurricane Camille claims to be approved by the American Insurance Association's special storm advisory office at Biloxi were all paid to policyholders of Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies.

The AIA coordinates catastrophe claims adjusting for individual insurance companies.

The loss payments were approved and paid Aug. 26 to policyholders in the Pascagoula, Miss., area.

Jack Snitker of the Lubbock, Texas, branch, one of 16 adjusters Fireman's Fund brought to the Mississippi Gulf Coast to handle hurricane claims, closed the five losses.

Fireman's Fund was one of the first companies to have a catastrophe office in full operation. Thomas Rodgers, home office general adjuster from the Atlanta, Ga., branch, arrived at the scene Aug. 19 only one day after Hurricane Camille passed over the coast.

Mr. Rodgers is supervisor of the special catastrophe office, located at the Holiday Inn at Biloxi.

The Fireman's Fund storm office was fully operational on Aug. 25. Over 900 claims reports were received by the end of the first day.

Mets Now Only Half Game Back

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Joan Payson burst into Gil Hodges' press conference, excused herself for interrupting and then threw her ample arms around the manager of the New York Mets.

"Oh," the Mets' principal owner bubbled, "it's just so wonderful. We're all so happy." The subject of Mrs. Payson's joy was not just the Mets' 7-1 romp over Chicago Tuesday night that moved New York to within one-half game of the crumbling Cubs in the National League's East Division pennant race.

It also was a burst of accumulated emotion over the sudden and stunning success of their eight-year-old franchise, which for so long has been the biggest joke around the National League.

The Mets, believe it or not, are contending for a pennant. Yes, the Mets.

They wear the same uniforms that Casey Stengel and Rod Kanehl and Mary Thronberry and Elio Chacon once wore. But there is one important difference. These Mets win. These Mets aren't very funny to the rest of the National League.

"I remember when I played for Pittsburgh," said Donn Clendenon, who made Tuesday's key victory a little easier with a two-run homer.

"We'd come into New York feeling we were going to win a series. We were playing the Mets and we knew they'd make a mistake—mental or otherwise and we'd take advantage and win."

Suddenly, the shoe is on the other foot and it pinches. Tuesday night, moments before Clendenon hit his homer, Art Shamsky was trapped in a rundown but slid safely into second when Glenn Beckert of the Cubs dropped a throw. Clendenon followed with his homer. It was a scene reminiscent of Mets—circa 1962.

Ah, yes, 1962, that was the year Mrs. Payson invested just over $2 million for a team stocked with some beautiful names but not very many talented players.

The Mets weren't very good, but at least they showed up every day. And day after day, they lost. They lost an almost unbelievable 120 times that first season. They lost in almost every way known to baseball—organized and otherwise.

They had a pitcher—Roger Craig—who was so effective, he lost 24 games. You have to be the ace of the staff to pitch often enough to lose that many games.

Craig improved the next year—he lost only 22.

The Mets were so bad that Stengel once implored his athletes, saying "Can't anybody here play this game?" The phrase fit the Mets perfectly and became the title of a book about their early adventures.

For their first four seasons, the Mets always had one pitcher who would lose at least 20 games. Now, suddenly, they have a pitcher who has won 20 games. In fact, Tom Seaver, whose five-hitter beat the Cubs Tuesday night, has won 21 selves on the football field. For games—tops in the National League.

The talk around the league when the Mets started making waves this season was that eventually they'd fold. After all, in mid-afternoon and did a lot of argument went, these were the good, old Mets.

"I wonder if they're believers," said Seaver, grinning, and the "Met chances at this moment are the best of anybody in the league. We've got a bunch of unvetting of the 1969 Yerger young players who believe they Junior High Bobkittens, as the can do it."

Do it? You mean, win the pennant? The Mets? The same Prescott Curley Cubs team that finished 24 games out of first place last year.

Bud Harrelson, the Mets' shortstop, has a theory about the club's success story. "We're doing to everybody else what they used to do to us," said Harrelson. "We're loose and relaxed. We're playing the same steady ball every day, and we're happy and loose."

Harrelson is one of the young veterans of the club. He was listed, Prescott is supposed to playing shortstop when the Mets were regular tenants of 10th place.

Prescott Is Bobcat Foe Here Friday

By RALPH ROUNTON
Star Sports Writer
Just like last year, the Hope Bobcats have staked their pride on beating the Prescott Curley Wolves this Friday evening at 7:30 p.m.

And the game should tell the truth on the question of the Bobcats, who disappointingly lost to Ashdown 14-6 last Friday. In 1968 this writer sang the same song after a 7-0 Ashdown defeat, but Hope and Prescott settled nothing while battling to a 0-0 tie.

This time around, a satisfying victory is the only cure-all for the Bobcats, at a time when confidence is at a low ebb. This group of seniors has gone 6-16-2 as Bobcats, and the juniors have gone 4-8-1.

Those are mighty unimpressive figures, and tend to teach a squad the best ways to lose.

Now, it has gotten to the point of no return, and the turnabout must start with Prescott. The present situation, which occurred once more at Ashdown, was that the Bobcats wanted awfully bad to win, but two bad breaks put Hope behind 14-0.

At this point, though the players still were trying hard, the Cats simply froze and began losing what had been complete control of the game from the outset. The offense, which had been impressive, suddenly became quite sloppy and the blocking broke down frequently.

Nobody had lost the hope that the Bobcats could eventually pull it out, but the subconscious freeze was borne out when statistics showed no Hope first downs in the entire second half.

What is sorely needed at this crucial point is a couple of big, easy wins with little opposition. However, Prescott is expected to compete evenly with the Cats, though the Wolves lost their opener 12-6 at Stamps, one of the better Class B Schools.

In the meantime, a mere victory would get the job done for the Bobcats, who in Coach Higgins' words are "in fine shape physically, with no injuries at all at Ashdown or in the 'B' game Monday night."

So the team prepares mentally for the tough game Friday night against Prescott, knowing that with a good performance the first win of the year will produce. What must be eliminated from the players' minds is the lingering fear and memory of games which could have been won but slipped away for one reason or another. This is the trauma that hits time and again in games like the last two Ashdown openers, when turnovers and penalties sapped the Hope momentum dry.

I can sit all night and write about teams that came back after losing the important first game, as I did a year ago today before Prescott, but the battle our team now faces can not be won on one night.

Any team with the size, experience, leadership, and potential. In fact, Tom Seaver, whose five-hitter beat the Cubs Tuesday night, has won 21 selves on the football field. For games—tops in the National League.

The talk around the league when the Mets started making waves this season was that eventually they'd fold. After all, in mid-afternoon and did a lot of argument went, these were the good, old Mets.

You Hear Everything in Baseball

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer
Spillball charges, chants of "goodbye Leo," and a winning single by a kid who wants to stay in the big time. That's the good old National League for you.

En route to the outfield in the second inning Tuesday night, Cincinnati's Pete Rose complained to umpire Andy Olsen that Gaylord Perry was throwing spitballs. Out of the game went Rose, seven innings later down went the Reds, 7-4, to San Francisco, and back into first in the NL West went the Giants.

Manager Leo Durocher sat in a Shea Stadium dugout, listened to chants of "Goodbye Leo, Goodbye Leo," we're glad to see you go," and watched his Chicago Cubs lose to New York 7-1, have their NL East lead cut to one-half game and actually fall a game behind the Mets in the loss column.

"I hope these hits I'm getting mean I can stay up here a while," said Ralph Carr after his run-scoring pinch single in the 10th inning gave Atlanta a 2-1 victory over Los Angeles and moved the Braves past the Dodgers into third in the West, 1½ games back of San Francisco and a game behind Cincinnati.

In other NL action, Houston trounced San Diego 9-2 to move to within three games of the top in the West, Montreal downed Pittsburgh 4-2 and St. Louis took Philadelphia 6-2.

Baltimore beat Washington 6-1 and 3-2, Detroit blanked the New York Yankees 2-0, Baltimore topped Cleveland 3-1, Minnesota outlasted California 11-7 and Kansas City edged Oakland 2-1 in the American League. The Chicago White Sox and Seattle were not scheduled.

Willie McCovey's 42nd homer, with Willie Mays aboard with a single, in the seventh snapped a 1-1 tie, and the Giants added four more runs in the seventh on two doubles, a walk and three singles ended the Giants to replace the Reds in first place.

"All I said was 'Why don't you do your job and check the ball when a complaint is made,'" Rose said of the comities that led to his early exit. But Perry still was around at the end as he boosted his record to 17-12.

The Mets, who have won two fewer games and lost one less than the Cubs, gave Tom Seaver, 21-7, two runs in the first inning. Seaver went on to pitch a five-hitter, and the Mets went on to batter Ferguson Jenkins, 19-13, for five more runs, two coming on Donn Clendenon's homer and one on Art Shamsky's homer.

The defeat gave the Cubs their longest losing streak of the season, six straight.

Carr's hit drove in Sonny Jackson, who was hit by a pitch and sacrifice to second, and made Phil Niekro the Braves' first 20-game winner since they moved to Atlanta. He has lost 12.

One of the six hits for the Dodgers, now two games out of first, was Ted Sizemore's lead-off homer in the fourth. Atlanta tied the game and broke a 19-inning scoreless streak in the seventh when Hank Aaron singled and scored on Rico Carty's double.

Jim Wynn's three-run homer, his 30th, sparked a five-run Houston fifth and helped Larry Dierker become the first Astro pitcher ever to win 19 games. Dierker, who has lost 10, pitched a two-hitter until the ninth when Jerry Morales singled with two out and scored on Ivan Murrell's homer.

Pittsburgh, third in the East, 6½ games out, had its four-game winning streak snapped by Montreal as Bob Bailey drove in two runs with a double and a sacrifice fly and Coco Laboy hit a two-run homer to back up Steve Renko's five-hit pitching.

St. Louis got a big game from rookie Jerry DaVannon—two doubles, two RBI and two runs scored—in beating Philadelphia.

BATTING — Jim Wynn, Astros, drove in four runs with his 30th homer and a sacrifice fly in Houston's 9-2 rout of San Diego.

PITCHING — Phil Niekro, Braves, limited Los Angeles to six hits in Atlanta's 2-1, 10-inning triumph and became the first pitcher to win 20 games since the Braves moved to Atlanta.

'69 Hogs Could Be His Best —Broyles

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas football Coach Frank Broyles' verdict on the 1968 Razorbacks is that they could be better than any team he has coached, but he adds cautiously, "We can change all this by losing the first game."

Broyles, interviewed by 30 touring Southwest Conference sports writers Tuesday, said he dases his assessment of the Razorbacks on the 10-1 season, including a 16-2 Sugar Bowl victory over Georgia, last year and the caliber of the recruits.

"Last year I said good things could happen," the coach said. "This team has got to make the good things happen."

Arkansas is ranked No. 2 in the nation in the preseason Associated Press poll.

"If we have what we hope we have got, it'll be a challenge," said Broyles of the rating.

He said, however, he believes the defense will have to start faster and give the offense a chance to develop. He noted that the coaching staff is looking for replacements for offensive line positions left open by graduations.

Broyles said he had confidence in the Razorback defense. In the past two or three years—because of injuries and the wide-open offensive trends—"our defense has been on the defensive," he said.

"Beginning late last fall and continuing this fall we are hoping our defense will be offensive," he said.

"I think our defense can attack," he added.

Broyles said he believed the Razorback offense must do better this season to perform as well as it did last year because of the defensive adjustments of other teams.

"It (the offense) ought to be about the same in execution but I'm not sure we'll get the same results because of the tremendous defensive swing," he said.

Broyles raved about quarterback Bill Montgomery, now a junior.

"I don't believe there has been a true sophomore do what Montgomery did last year, with the passing and the option," the coach said. "It is a rarity when you find a dropback quarterback as a runner and as an option man."

"Montgomery has the intangibles that you are looking for," he said. "After looking at

Convicts Watch Jets Work Out

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — For the New York Jets there is no escaping the diehard National Football League fan.

Tuesday they went to prison and found one.

The American Football League Jets were there to practice. The fan was there for possession of narcotics.

And they met on Rikers Island, a maximum security area sealed off from the outside community because it sits in the middle of the East River. But television has brought pro football to the prisoners—and they have become experts.

all the films, we felt like he played like a sophomore five minutes in two different games out of the year. I think that's a real tribute to him."

Broyles said the Razorback quarterback picture hadn't been as good since he alternated George McKinney and Billy Moore in 1961. A fifth-year senior, John Eichler, will back up Montgomery.

Broyles called Montgomery's principal receiver, Chuck Dickens, a perfectionist.

"On every pass that is thrown to him you would think it is the last play of the Sugar Bowl and we need it to win," Broyles said. "He compares with any player we've ever had at working at his trade."

The coach said the running game would depend on junior tailback Bill Burnett, who had his toe operated on after the Sugar Bowl and then strained a muscle early in fall practice.

Cuellar in 21st Beats Washington

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
Mike Cuellar is rapidly turning Billy Hunter into a prophet and Dave McNally into a reminder.

Cuellar, Baltimore's 21-game winner, ran his record to 11-1 since the All-Star Game by six-hitting Washington 6-1 Tuesday in the opener of a two-night doubleheader. The Orioles also took the nightcap 3-2 and reduced their magic number for clinching the American League East to six over Detroit's defending world champion Tigers.

"Mike," coach Hunter told Cuellar earlier this season when the Cuban left-hander was bemoaning the fact that his earned run average was low but his won-loss record just so-so, "after the All-Star break it'll be your turn. From there on, you'll be 11-2."

Cuellar's hot streak also is bringing back memories of the 14-2 mark posted by fellow lefty McNally after the 1968 All-Star break.

Elsewhere in the AL, Minnesota outslugged California 11-7 and boosted its West Division lead to ½ game over Oakland, which lost to Kansas City 2-1.

Boston tripped Cleveland 3-1 and Detroit blanked the New York Yankees 2-0 while the Chicago White Sox and Seattle were not scheduled.

In the National League, San Francisco whipped Cincinnati 7-4, Atlanta edged Los Angeles 2-1 in 10 innings, the New York Mets drubbed the Chicago Cubs 7-1, Houston clobbered San Diego 9-2, Montreal upset Pittsburgh 6-2 and St. Louis downed Philadelphia 6-2.

Cuellar, acquired in an inter-league trade with Houston last winter, was only 10-9 at the All-Star break. Then came consecutive victories over Chicago, Kansas City, Minnesota, Kansas, City, Minnesota, Seattle and California before Oakland beat him 4-2 on Aug. 23. Since then he's knocked off Seattle, California, Detroit and Washington.

Another prophet is Baltimore super-scout Jim Russo. "Listen," he said when Cuellar was having his early won-loss troubles, "you haven't really seen Cuellar yet. This guy is more than a pitcher. He's an artist. He has five pitches and complete command of them all."

Actually, Cuellar has more than five.

"He's got a fast ball, a hard curve, a slow curve, a slider and the screwball he throws at several speeds," according to Orioles pitching coach George

Wednesday, September 10, 1969

Bamberger. "His secret is his great variety. If his screwball isn't working, he can go with the fast ball. One day against Washington he even went with his slow curve."

Tuesday, Cuellar had a one-hitter for seven innings and lost his shutout in the ninth when Frank Howard slammed his 45th homer.

Brooks Robinson drove in two runs in each game for the Orioles and a fourth-inning single by Mark Belanger sent home the winning run in the nightcap.

Frank Bertina, sent to the minors by the Senators earlier this season and then acquired by Baltimore, put down a bases-loaded Washington threat in the sixth.

Minnesota erupted for seven runs in the sixth inning, including five after California shortstop Jim Fregosi bobbled a third-out grounder, and went on to hammer the Angels.

The Twins raked four California pitchers for 19 hits and Leo Cardenas drove in three runs with a homer and double.

Rookie right-hander Dick Drago hurled a five-hitter and Bob Oliver drove in both runs with two-out singles in the fourth and sixth innings as Kansas City nipped Oakland. It was the A's fourth consecutive defeat and 12th in the last 15 games.

Two-out singles by Carl Yastrzemski and Reggie Smith in the seventh accounted for two runs and lifted Boston past Cleveland as Vicente Romo, traded from the Indians to the Red Sox earlier in the year, outpitched Sam McCuowell. Tony Horton homered for Cleveland.

Detroit pushed across two runs in the first inning on a single, double, wild pitch and passed ball and rookie Mike Kilkenny scattered eight hits in blanking the Yankees.

Dallas and Cleveland Pick of NFL

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It looks like another Cleveland-Dallas showdown in the Eastern Conference of the National Football League this season, the last before the Browns move over into the American League in the 1970 merger.

The Browns appear to have too much for the St. Louis Cardinals, their main contenders in the Century Division and the Cowboys should have no serious trouble in the Capitol Division.
When the Browns and Cowboys meet in the Cotton Bowl, Sunday, Dec. 28 for the Eastern title, Dallas probably will be favored again but Cleveland is the likely winner.
Here's the way it looks from here:
Century Division
1. Cleveland.

HOPE (ARK) STAR, Printed by Offset
2. St. Louis
3. New York
4. Pittsburgh
Capitol Division
1. Dallas
2. Washington
3. Philadelphia
4. New Orleans
The Browns have the two-time rushing champ in Leroy Kelly, a solid offensive line, a capable passer in Bill Nelsen and fine receivers despite the injury to Milt Morin. Blanton Collier has a sound, well-disciplined team despite the 34-0 disaster against Baltimore last December. Rookie Ron Johnson, although handicapped by a late start, should make up for the loss of retired Ernie Green.

The Cardinals suffered a severe setback when Chuck Taubert, their excellent punter and kick return specialist had to undergo knee surgery in August. Jackie Smith and John Gilliam obtained from New Orleans, are fine targets for Charley Johnson or Jim Hart who has been out of action with a broken finger.
New York, has been slow coming around due to injuries to the offensive line. With Tucker Frederickson rounding into form and Allie Sherman's shuffle of Freeman White and Aaron Thomas beginning to work out, the club has the attack to make. The defense managers to rush the enemy passer.

Pittsburgh's last year in the old NFL (They shift to the AFL division in 1970 with Cleveland and Baltimore) looks like another cellar finish although new coach Chuck Noll expects improvement. Rookie Joe Greene should help the defense that allowed 397 points last year.

Despite the retirement of Don Meredith and Don Perkins, the Cowboys seem to have too much for the opposition in the Capitol Division. Craig Morton gave his big chance and Calvin Hall, the rookie from Yale, has been a pleasant surprise although the injury to Dan Reeves hurt.
Vince Lombardi's first year as head man at Washington hinges on Sonny Jurgensen and the fine pass receivers. They could challenge the Cowboys if Morton doesn't come through.

Health Problems Of Moon Travelers

By WAYNE BRANDSTADT

 Although few of us will ever go to the moon, the medical problems of those who do are of interest. A head cold is never fatal but the discomfort of the attendant blocking of the nasal sinuses is greatly aggravated in outer space. No amount of decongestant will drain the sinuses in a weightless environment.

 All the health problems of our astronauts in flight are treated by flight surgeons on three eight-hour shifts in mission control. Although several drugs are available to the astronauts, they are under strict orders not to take anything but aspirin without first consulting one of the flight surgeons.

 The problem of motion sickness has apparently been solved by a simple exercise.
 The head is bent forward,
 backward, left and right,
 then turned left and right repeatedly. Each movement is held for a count of two. The exercise is repeated for a couple of hours if necessary at the first inking that motion sickness may develop. This may be worth trying sometime to prevent air-sickness or seasickness.

 Prolonged space flights greatly reduce the efficiency of the heart because of the limited opportunity for exercise. This can be corrected by a period of reconditioning on return to earth. Furthermore, travel in space is not conducive to rest. The space ship has an automatic firing device that may discharge
 as often as every five minutes to keep the ship properly oriented in relation to earth so that vital messages can be sent and received.
 This firing creates vibrations that allow a very fitful sleep at best, and usually no more than five hours a day. Only persons in top physical condition can take this for long.

 In spite of the medical scientists' worry that passing through the Van Allen radiation belt might damage the astronaut's genes, there is no evidence at present that this has happened. Two children have been born to astronauts
 after successful flights.
 They are now 3 and 5 years old and perfectly normal.

 The danger that the actual moon landing would bring back to earth some strange and malevolent germs seems infinitesimal, but nevertheless elaborate precautions were taken to prevent such an occurrence and will be taken on all future flights.

 Oaks are usually the last trees in the forest to shed their leaves in the fall.

Arkansas Cannery Is Vindicated

 ELYRIA, Ohio (AP) — Two
 food officials testified in Lorain County Common Pleas Court here Tuesday that tests they made this year showed that Steele Cannery Co. products met federal canning standards.
 The testimony of Norman Olson and L. R. Gibson ended the hearing of an Ohio Department of Agriculture suit which seeks to ban the Springdale, Ark., firm's products from Ohio.

 Judge John D. Pincura announced that legal briefs could be filed until Oct. 19 and after that he would make his ruling.

 The suit followed a claim by Mrs. Margery Kirchner of Lorain, who said that on Oct. 17, 1968, she purchased a can of the company's greens and found rodent parts in the can.
 The Ohio Department of Agriculture investigated the company following her complaint and filed suit.

 We offer our most grateful and heartfelt appreciation for each expression of sympathy in the recent death of our loved one. Except for the sustaining grace of God and the love and loyalty of friends and loved ones our grief would be more than we could bear. May God Bless You.

Shares purchased by the new stockholders and present stockholders totals approximately one half of the $25,000 goal. The drive will continue until Sept. 30.

When the telephone rang in the Star office this morning and the operator said it was a collect call from Los Angeles I figured right away it was a report from C.M. (Pod) Rogers, Jr., our circulation manager, and Carter Russell, who when last seen were leaving Hope with a truckload of big watermelons and headed for the TV cameras on the West Coast.

But what I didn't figure was the full measure of their success. They made a grand slam in L.A. Pod told me he and Russell and their melons appeared on the Lawrence Welk show which was taped Tuesday and will be aired Saturday night, Sept. 20.

Rogers and the melons have been given a spot on the Glen Campbell show which will be taped this Thursday and shown on the air Thursday, Sept. 25.

Our Hope men also cut in on the taping of Laugh-In, but didn't have the date on which it will be aired.

The Los Angeles Times got in to the act also, running a quarter-page picture of a big melon with some pretty girls decorating it.

Rogers and Russell were in a downtown L.A. restaurant and came out to find some vandals, overpowered by the Arkansas publicity, had broken a window in the truck and made off with a big watermelon.

The boys will start home after the Glen Campbell Show taping Thursday—ending a long trip on an exciting note.

Further evidence of the splash given Hope and Arkansas on the West Coast is the following letter this column received this morning from a leading advertising agency in Little Rock:

Mr. Alex Washburn, Editor Hope Star, Hope, Arkansas
Two of Arkansas's fine ambassadors are Pod Rogers and Carter Russell.

They were the representatives of Hope in Hempstead County, during Arkansas Week in San Diego. This week was celebrated during August 24-31 to recognize the 200th anniversary of San Diego, the oldest incorporated city in America.

The highlight of the week was a picnic sponsored by the Arkansas Club of Southern California. And the big feature of this picnic was the serving of Hope watermelons. Mr. Rogers and Mr. Russell trucked a ton of Hope watermelons to San Diego for this event. There was extensive newspaper, radio and television coverage of the picnic, with much of the coverage devoted to the Hope watermelons.

We need more citizens like Mr. Rogers and Mr. Russell. They gave of their personal time and resources to make this trip. In addition to bringing the watermelons to San Diego for the picnic, they brought some giant melons which are to be featured on the Glen Campbell show. This will mean that additional millions who watch this TV program will hear and know about the Hope melons and about your community.

As the coordinator for Arkansas Week in San Diego, I want to express my appreciation publicly and to take this means of recognizing the fine contribution by Mr. Rogers and Mr. Russell.

Half of Air Deaths Due to Crashes of Jets, Small Planes

By JAMES R. POLK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Almost once a day the sleek, crowded airline jets that crisscross the nation's skies have a close brush with the mass tragedy of a collision in the air.

More than half of all victims of commercial jet crashes in this country in the last 2½ years have died because of collisions with small private planes.

And while other areas of air safety are constantly improving, this is not.

The latest crash killed 83 persons Tuesday when, eyewitnesses said, an Allegheny Airlines EC9 jet was hit by a single-engine private plane as it was approaching a landing at Indianapolis. There were no survivors.

It was the third fatal collision involving a jetliner and a small plane since 1967.

According to Federal Aviation Agency records, there were no fewer than 309 near-misses involving jet airliners last year—an average of almost one a day.

And with the vast, growing fleet of small private planes outnumbering the commercial airliners 50-to-1, officials say there has been no drop in the near-misses reports this year.

"We have no intent of minimizing the problem. It's serious," said an FAA expert.

Very few of the near-misses involve two commercial jets, FAA officials report, since the airliners fly rigidly separated routes, usually high in the air. Almost all of the incidents are combinations with private planes— or with military aircraft.

Three of the nation's seven fatal airline jet passenger accidents since early 1967 have stemmed from collisions, all at low levels near airports where private planes swarm.

The first took 26 lives near Dayton, Ohio, when a light plane collided with a Trans World Airlines DC9 approaching a landing. Later that year, 82 persons, including the secretary of the navy, were killed when a private plane that had missed a turn crashed into a Piedmont 727 taking off from Asheville, N.C.

Often only the split-second escape of one plane saves the other.

Alaska Puts Oil Fields Up for Bidding

By TOM BRILEY
Associated Press Writer

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — The State of Alaska opens bids today on what it hopes will be $1 billion in leases on part of its vast new arctic oilfields.

Gov. Keith Miller declared, "We won't take a nickel less than the value we have set."

Representatives of the world's major oil companies jammed oilstruck Anchorage for the biggest such lease sale in history.

By nightfall the high bidders will be known and a chartered jet will be flying to New York with checks from the winning oil companies. Most of the companies will draw checks on New York banks.

The oilmen assemble in a 659-seat municipal auditorium at 7 a.m. Alaska Daylight Time, (Noon EDT) to hand in their sealed bids. The bidding closes an hour later, and state officials said it may be seven hours before the tabulation is completed.

The Republican governor reminded Alaskans in a statewide broadcast Tuesday night that the state has set "floor bids" on each of the 179 tracts up for lease. "Floor bids" are confidential figures on how much the state considers each lease to be worth. Alaska won't sell the leases for less, Miller said.

Under state law, each of the 450,858 acres on the block must go for $1 per acre for 10 years. But the law doesn't prevent the state from collecting "bonus bids" from the oil companies on each acre. Thus, a firm might bid $1 per acre and throw in a bonus of several thousand dollars per acre.

The governor also noted that Alaska is leasing only a third of the land available for oil production on the North Slope, where one of the world's richest petroleum deposits was discovered a year ago. The rest of the land probably will be leased later.

Light Plane Hits Big Jet and 83 Die

By MARGARET GENTRY
and MARTIN E. BIEMER
Associated Press Writers

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Collection of bodies and debris continued today in a farm field where the broken parts of a colliding airliner and a light plane plunged from the sky, killing 83 persons.

Eyewitnesses said the single-engine craft carrying a soloing student pilot, 35-year-old Robert W. Carey, knocked the tail off the Allegheny Airlines jetliner as the larger plane approached Weir-Cook Municipal Airport Tuesday.

All 78 passengers and the crew of four on the jetliner, as well as Carey, an Indianapolis plumber and father of six, were killed.

The jetliner, which began its flight at Boston, had touched down at Baltimore and Cincinnati and was scheduled to stop at the Indianapolis airport before going on to St. Louis.

"It was near perfect weather," said John Shaffer, one of a team of 16 investigators from the Federal Aviation Administration. "It's almost inconceivable that the two planes were at the same spot at the same time."

The aerial collision occurred near London, a community of 300 about 10 miles southeast of Indianapolis.

Most of the wreckage of the DC9 airliner landed in a soybean field 100 yards from a mobile home park where many of the 150 residents watched with terror as the severed fuselage of the jet whistled toward them.

Bodies, wreckage and luggage fell from the sky.

The crew members who perished with 78 passengers were identified by Allegheny as Capt. James M. Elrod, 47, Plainfield, Ind., First Officer William E. Heckendorn, 26, Pittsburgh, and two stewardesses, Patricia Perry of Lynn, Mass., and Barbara Petrucci of Boston.

Searchers found bodies in a wide area, some among trailer homes and others hidden in the four-foot soybean stalks.

School Session Abbreviated

Supt. of Schools James H. Jones announced today that all Hope schools will operate on a short schedule next week as the facilities are not ready for a full day's operation.

Mr. Jones further stated that if it were possible a full day's schedule would be observed before the end of next week. An announcement will be made by next Tuesday or Wednesday.

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The moon went through violent and torrid pains of birth and early infancy about the same time as the earth, but then it died and became "a very quiet, peaceful place," scientists at the Lunar Receiving Laboratory believe.

This conclusion, based on examinations of rocks and dust returned to earth by Apollo 11, was revealed in interviews as the scientists prepared to release some of the lunar material Friday to other scientists for further study.

Etter Gives Summary of Charter Plan

Provisions of the proposed 1970 new Constitution of Arkansas were explained to the Hempstead County Democratic Women's Organization Tuesday night by William H. Etter, of Washington, Hempstead County's delegate to the Constitutional Convention, which is currently in recess after being in session all summer, and which will reconvene early in 1970.

Mr. Etter gave a brief history of the state's five constitutions as a preliminary to explaining the need which has existed for a number of years now, either for a new document, or major revisions of the old, which he said had been amended some 60 times in the past, with 53 amendments presently remaining, while seven had been superseded by later amendments.

Explanation to the proposed new document which, he said, now existed as some 91 separate fragments and is presently being put together in its proper continuity by a committee of the Convention, was confined to an explanation of structure, powers and taxation authority of county and municipal governments, with some further mention of changes in the court structure on all levels from the state Supreme Court, a proposed appellate court, and district courts, which he said would include a permissible combination of law and equity now represented by Circuit and Chancery courts. All matters of a judicial nature presently handled by the county judges would be transferred to this level. Next in line would be what is currently the municipal courts of the state, which would be known as County Trial Courts, with the judge thereof elected county-wide and the court having, as at present.

Woman Freed, Hunt on for Kidnapers

TORONTO (AP) — Police hunted today for the kidnapers of a wealthy young woman who was freed unharmed after her husband left $200,000 ransom on a country road.

Police would not identify the victim of the kidnapping, who was released Tuesday. But Henry Radcliffe Nelles, Toronto brokerage employee, issued a terse statement saying: "I will confirm that my wife was kidnapped Sunday night." His wife, Mary, is the daughter of Marshall D. Davis, wealthy trucking executive.

The police were giving out almost no official reports, but newsmen pieced together this account:

The kidnapers seized Nelles and his wife Sunday as they entered their home, a converted schoolhouse in Claremont, about 20 miles northeast of Toronto.

Israel said the commando force crossed the Gulf of Suez about 2 a.m. and landed near El Hasayer, about 26 miles south of the Suez Canal.

The force moved southward for 30 miles and met little or no resistance as it "attacked guard posts, army camps, radar stations, military vehicles and military encampments," an Israeli spokesman said. Then the commandos and their vehicles were picked up and returned across the gulf to Sinai Desert posts which Israel seized from Egypt in the 1967 war.

Israel officers said the ground troops were backed up by warplanes that struck scores of military targets and delivered a "devastating attack" on a big antiaircraft missile battery at El Hasayer.

Israel said one Israeli plane was shot down over the gulf, its pilot was missing and only one Israeli foot soldier was injured.

Egypt claimed its forces downed three Israeli planes, sank two torpedo boats and inflicted heavy casualties. The Israelis were "forced to turn tail" after suffering heavy losses of men and equipment, Cairo Radio said.

Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir said in a broadcast that the raid was "meant to strike at the bases and concentrations of the Egyptian army which have served as a base for commando units laying mines and launching attacks against Israeli planes."

Observers had expected a heavy strike against Egypt for some time in retaliation for recent heavy Egyptian firing across the Suez Canal.

A senior member of the Israeli general staff told a news conference that 2,000 to 3,000 Egyptian troops were in the El Hasayer area. He did not reveal the size of the Israeli attack force.

The officer said many Egyptian soldiers fled rather than fight, but he had no estimate of the number of Egyptians wounded.

Asked whether the Israeli air force had used any of the Phantom F4 fighter-bombers it recently acquired from the United States, he replied: "All kinds of planes were used." But Lt. Gen. Mordechai Hod, the chief of air force operations, said later that all types of aircraft "except for the Phantoms" were used.

Egypt's ambassador to Britain, Ahmed Hassan el-Fekih, had charged that the raid was an act of escalation which directly resulted from the delivery of the Phantoms. The United States has sold Israel 50 of the planes, and the first shipment arrived Saturday.

Israeli Jets Hit Egypt's War Wagons

TELE VIV (AP) — Israeli jets pounded Egyptian army vehicles at Ras Abu Darg and Ras Za' Afrana in Egypt today at the same points across the Gulf of Suez hit by Israeli armored columns the day before, the army announced.

The terse announcement said Israeli planes hit Egyptian army vehicles at both points along the gulf 39 and 65 miles south of Port Suez which is at the southern end of the Suez Canal.

The jets struck in the morning and all returned safely to base, the spokesman said.

Tuesday's raid by Israeli armored forces, backed by jets and naval vessels, was the largest amphibious operation into Egypt since the six-day war of 1967. Israel said 100-150 Egyptians were killed.

The Israelis roamed along a 30-mile stretch of the coast, apparently without major Egyptian resistance.

The 10-hour operation, the first by Israeli armored units in Egypt, was described by Defense Minister Moshe Dayan as a demonstration of operational ability "almost unprecedented in military history." He warned of "even heavier strikes" across the Gulf in the wake of alleged Egyptian violations of the cease-fire.

The Israeli war hero said the amphibious raid by Israeli infantry and tank forces was "one of the most daring" since the six-day war of June 1967. He said the Israeli troops displayed "an operational ability almost unprecedented in military history."

Israel said the commando force crossed the Gulf of Suez about 2 a.m. and landed near El Hasayer, about 26 miles south of the Suez Canal.
